

The UK's free catalogue
of electronic resources

iesr.ac.uk | iesr@mimas.ac.uk

What is IESR?

The Information Environment Service Registry (IESR) is an academic 'Yellow Pages for the Internet' providing the UK's free catalogue of electronic resources. The IESR provides access to a constantly growing and up-to-date catalogue of resource descriptions and information about methods of accessing them.

What does it contain?

IESR content is wide ranging and multi-disciplinary. Resource types include databases, datasets, bibliographic resources, e-learning materials, e-books, e-journals, repositories, research publications and image collections.

Why should I use IESR?

Using IESR enables you to discover new resources by subject area or resource type. IESR provides a single, definitive source of information about resources and acts as a signpost to relevant collections. Access to content is through web and machine interfaces or search plug-ins.

Why should I contribute to IESR?

By contributing descriptions of your resources to IESR you will promote collections to a UK-wide audience, improve access and increase usage.

How do I find out more?

Visit the website: iesr.ac.uk
Contact us: iesr@mimas.ac.uk